Billy Sunday Delighted With Great Crowd That Turns Out to Hear Him.

TELLS OF SOCIETY'S SINS

Many Telegrams Read Congratulating Revivalist on His Success Here.

More people tried to crush their way into Billy Sunday's Tabernacle last night than ever struggled for entrance into eeting house in New York where the Word of God was being preached. This ating expertness comes from long parlence in sizing on historical jams a hor. Madison Square Garden.

If Billy had one regret it was that he has not received the power of working a miracle. Otherwise he might have ing a miracle. Otherwise he might have made the container greater than the thing contained—might with a sweep of his arms have expanded the walls of his limitly walled church and let in the eager thousands who arrived just too fats. If he could have had his will he would have made the Tabernacle just about twice as big as it is, big enough to have held 40,000 instead of the 20,000 the architects planned for At least Ordinarily the doors of the building are invitingly open until 8 P. M. Last night they were slammed shut at 7 P. M., closed with difficulty against the surge of massed thousands that surrounded the immense structure and pleaded with the police to give them a chance to look on at least. Persons with duties at the Tabernacle had the utmost trouble to force their way through the excluded crowd. Not one seat was available after 7 P. M., and on three sides of the auditorium people were standing ten deep and considering themselves fortunate to inside at all.

Assatting the "sins of society" he reached the climax of the sermon "The society women of to-day are prigish, selfash and contented with a fine gown, a little joy ride, a game of note and a new lid. Their lives are perfectly meaningless. The son of the average millionaire hasn't brains to run a kitten for a min. Egress to the street at the station at Broadway and 168th street is obtained only by two elevators and a winding stairway that leads from a 130 foot level. As train after train dismensional training of the street is dent in these times. "We haven't enough God in our politics, in our political parties," he said. "I foot level. As train after train dismensional like to see a political party with christian manhood.

The tremendous outpouring, greater than on the first Sunday of the evangoilst's campaign, had its natural effect on his spirits. He threw into his sermon more than his customary energy even. His talk was rosy with optimism, for he now believes New York is as receptive as Philadelphia, Boston, Detroit and a dozen other cities were. At the close of the sermon, when he stood with close of the sermon, when he stood with one foot on a chair and the other on the table top, sweat streaming down his face, voice faltering from exhaustion, into his work, stood by the chorister, almost with the appearance of one who endures necessary preliminaries. But when the hymns were all sung, when the free will offering had tinkled into the pans, when the prayer had been said and the crowd had quieted so much that one cough sounded like a drumbeat, he lesped into his work, taking a running start literally and talking 200 words to the minute for a solid hour.

'The Sins of Society' was Billy's topic last night, a congenial topic, for Billy sees little good in society and delights to score its failings.

'I believe the world is dying for a manifestation of the love of God,' he began. 'I always feel sympathy for the hobo who went to the back door and asked the lady for a handout and mooched her for a flapjack. When she came across with a tract the poor bum beat it up the tracks cursing and damning. I have no sympathy with his oaths, but I have with his feelings. A lot of you preachers are going daffy about social service. I believe in social service if it has Christ in it, but as for the Christless kind, none of it for me. The hope of this old world is in the principles of Jesus Christ. The people who sneer at religion are a disgrace to American civilization, and they are killing everything grand and noble in the human heart.''

Bearcely a glance was necessary last might to show that many of Billy's hear-man heart."

Scarcely a glance was necessary last night to show that many of Billy's hearers were ministers of the Gospel, who had closed their own churches to get a chance to listen to the man who had shocked them perhaps before they came to see that he got results, however rasping his methods were to the cultivated and conservative. As a matter of fact there was a gathering of preachers of half a dozen denominations after the service yesterday afternoon. They talked Billy over pretty thoroughly, confessed Billy over pretty thoroughly, confessed that he had jarred their accepted no-tions of the way Scripture should be preached and then admitted that he be reaching the people.

Cites Antitheses.

Billy offered a string of antitheses to prove that society goes squarely against God's programme. He charged up and down the platform, words flooding from his swiftly moving lips:

"Jesus Christ says 'Forgive your debtors.' The world says 'Sue them tomorrow for the dough.' Jesus Christ says 'Love thy neighbor as thyself.' The world says 'First come I, then I come again.' Jesus Christ says 'Whosoever smiteth thee on one cheek turn to him the other also.' The world says 'Call the cop.' Jesus Christ says 'What God hath joined together left no man put asunder.' The world says I will divorce you and marry some other woman.'

"The only scriptural grounds for divorce is adultery. When it comes to vorce is adultery. When it come Catholic from the top of my head to the ends of my toes. I am a minister of the Gospel, and so help me God! I shall never perform the marriage service for any man or any woman who has been divorced so long as the divorced wife or husband is alive!"

Billy quoted his text of the evening, "And why call ye me Lord, Lord, and do not the things which I say?" "The Bible," he cried, "says give to em that ask from thee. That doesn't them that ask from thee. That doesn't mean that when you meet a lazy lout who never sweat a collar out in his life that you have to give him the clothes off your back and go home yourself clothed in sunshine and climate. If there is some low lobster who will cuss and damn everybody that makes an conest dollar and who sits in a low honest dollar and who sits in a low groggery drinking stale beer you don't have to go down in your pocket and divey up with him. Not on your life. Not on your tintype."

Many Congratulations.

At the beginning of the service telegrams of congratulation were read from Billy Sunday clubs in many cities. # On Mountain Trail and City Pavement Jeffery Quad Has Proved Its Superiority

The Jeffery Quad is the most capable two-ton truck for adverse hauling conditions.

Because it drives, brakes and steers on all four wheels, it will climb steep grades, plow through heavy clay and maneuver in and out of corners where few rear drive trucks could possibly follow.

But, while the Jeffery Quad is a superior truck for extremely hard service, it is equally well suited to conditions where haulage problems are less severe.

Because the front and rear wheels track, the Quad is remarkably light on tires, frequently showing twice the tire mileage usually accredited to rear drive trucks.
